AREDIUM™

What is Macular Degeneration?

Macular degeneration is a degenerative condition of the macula (the central retina). It is the most common cause of vision loss in the United States for those 50 or older, and its prevalence increases with age. Macular degeneration is thought to be caused by multiple factors including ultraviolet and blue wave light, oxidation, aging, and possibly some genetic factors. Macular degeneration is classified as either “wet” or “dry,” with dry by far the most common. AREDIUM™ treats dry macular degeneration and helps prevent conversion to wet.

If you have dry macular degeneration, the correct vitamin could make the difference between maintaining your vision, or losing it completely.

How is it diagnosed?

Your eye doctor will use a variety of tests to detect macular degeneration. The first signs are generally mottling of the eye pigment and small, yellowish deposits that form within the layers of the retina called “drusen.” Patients with macular degeneration may notice subtle changes in vision, difficulty focusing when reading or when going from bright light to dim. Left completely untreated, macular degeneration will continue to worsen. There is no cure, but if your eye doctor identifies dry macular degeneration, nutritional therapy is essential.

Naturally the best

Available in capsule form and buffered tablets (for sensitive stomachs), AREDIUM™ contains no artificial colors or flavors, chemicals, starches or sugars, yeast or anything else unnatural. No other “name brand” vitamin for macular degeneration can make that claim.

Which AREDIUM™ formula is right for you?
